Meeting spaces are rampant throughout the SAS campus, from huddle spaces to meeting rooms of all sizes. The company culture and its revenues thrive off of collaboration across offices worldwide. SAS teams prefer to keep their meeting areas flexible to match the changing needs of its workforce who may want to map out a new product launch, or simply present plans and goals.

Whitlock assisted with larger meeting areas, such as this auditorium at SAS. The company's HQ has multiple buildings across campus, with huddle areas and auditoriums that have been integrated by Whitlock. The SAS team uses these spaces for HR training, streaming meetings and collaborating across business units.

Collaboration and communication also happens in the halls and lobbies at SAS. Nestled amongst their high-end local artwork and well-stocked break areas are large displays with messaging from HR, executives, line of business leaders and company-wide hot news.
